AWAKENING THE BEAR Firefight Book

Campaign Design by Uwe Eickert & Gunter Eickert

Operation Barbarossa

In June 1939, Germany and the Soviet Union entered into a "Treaty of Non-Aggression" in which both countries agreed to remain neutral in the event that either nation was attacked by another country. This Nazi-Soviet pact ensured the security of Germany's eastern flank should a German attack on Poland precipitate war with the western democracies. The treaty also included a secret protocol to divide Poland, Romania, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, and Finland into German and Soviet spheres of influence. This division would re-establish Germany's 1914 borders, which had been severely restricted at the end of WWI.

In September 1939, just three months after the treaty was signed, Germany attacked Poland and occupied the western half of the country. The Soviet Union attacked and occupied eastern Poland. (Conflict of Heroes: Price of Honour focuses on this invasion.)

The "Treaty of Non-Aggression" expanded German and Soviet trade with Germany providing military technology to the Soviets in exchange for raw materials. The Nazi-Soviet alliance became strained in the following years as Germany became concerned with the Soviet occupation of Bessarabia, which threatened Germany's main source of fuel: the Romanian oil fields. Germany also closely watched the Soviet build up of forces in Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, and eastern Poland. Hitler saw these moves as a Soviet intent to launch a sneak attack on Germany. He had preached as early as 1926, with the publication of his book 'Mein Kampf', that war with Russia was inevitable.

Bolstered by the relatively easy conquest of France and the Low Countries, Hitler decided to blind side the Soviets with a sudden and massive attack. Hitler believed that with surprise and a concentration of force, he could quickly topple the Soviet Union 'like a house of cards'.

On June 22, 1941, Germany attacked the Soviets in a large-scale operation code-named 'Barbarossa'.

The Plan

The decision to attack the Soviet Union linked Hitler's and the German Nazi leadership's ideological goal of creating "living space in the East" (Lebensraum im Osten) with more pragmatic goals of protecting Germany's sphere of power against the impending intervention and embargoes by Great Britain and the United States.

Russia, as in previous wars, provided an immense logistical problem against invasion. But the German High Command ignored these concerns, convinced that the "bumbling colossus" of the Soviet Union would, like France, collapse within a few weeks. The German command planned to use the Panzer (tank) and motorized infantry formations to cut through Soviet lines, encircle the enemy, and force their surrender in a rapid, combined-arms attack that became known as the Blitzkrieg.

The German Armed Forces (die Wehrmacht) was divided into three Army Groups: Group North, Group Center, and Group South.

Army Group North would occupy the Baltic countries and the important Soviet city and naval base of Leningrad.

Army Group Center would act as the main attack element of the operation; its forces were to rapidly advance toward the Soviet cities of Minsk and Smolensk, destroying the enemy in Byelorussia. Once successful, Army Group Center's attack would allow further attacks in the northwest and east.

Army Group South, a conglomeration of German, Romanian, Hungarian, Italian, and Slovakian forces, would occupy the Ukraine and the Crimea.

In total, Germany and its allies would field 166 divisions composed of 2,900 planes, 3,600 tanks, 12,600 field and artillery guns, and 3 million mobilized soldiers.

In the border regions, the Soviets would defend with 10,000 planes (only half were modern), 13,000 tanks, 50,000 artillery guns, and 2.9 million soldiers.

The Soviets grouped their forces into the North Front, the Northwest Front, the West Front, the Southwest Front, and the South Front. Six additional armies formed the STAVKA reserve, which was under the command of the Soviet Supreme Leader Stalin. Like Hitler, Joseph Stalin had almost absolute powers in the Soviet Union.

The Invasion

The German Air Force (Luftwaffe) attacked and destroyed most of the Soviet Air Force and gave air superiority to Germany for the first few months of the campaign. However, the Luftwaffe also lost about 300 irreplaceable planes and many trained aircrews within the first days.

On the ground, the biggest German successes were carried out by Army Group Center. The Germans used a tactic of bypassing and then surrounding the Soviets into pockets from which they could not escape. In the pocket battles of Bialystok and Minsk alone, the Wehrmacht captured 328,898 prisoners, 3102 guns and destroyed 3332 tanks. By July 10, Army Group Center was able to start its offensive on Smolensk. The "Smolensk battle" lasted two months and resulted in another large German victory. The Wehrmacht, however, suffered huge casualties and supplying troops deep within enemy territory proved to be increasingly difficult. Army Group Center decided to stop its advance to regroup, giving the Soviet Red Army precious time to form new defensive lines in front of Moscow, which was less than 200 miles away.

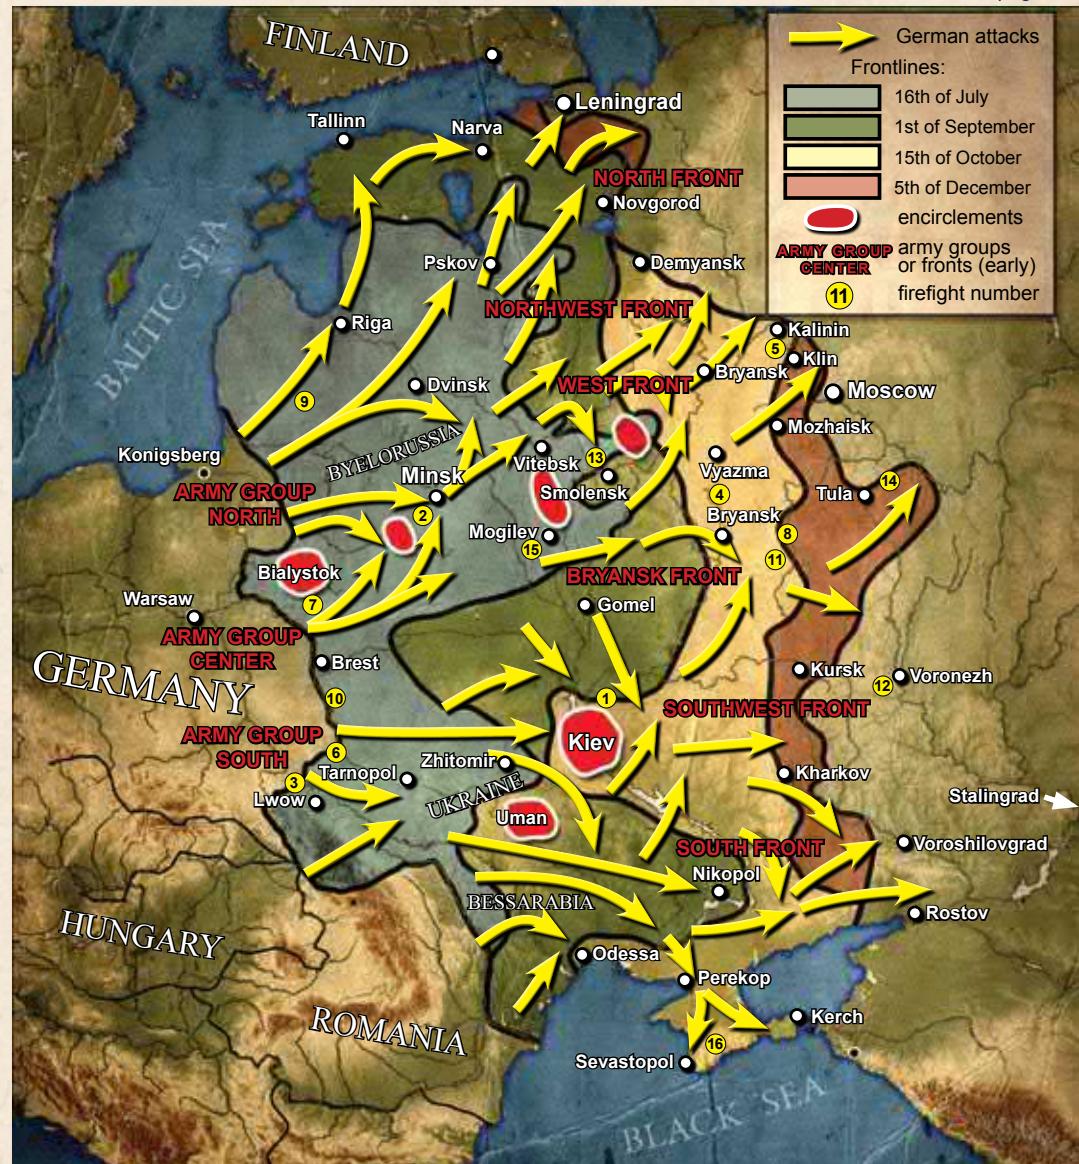

Meanwhile, in the north, the Red Army withdrew before the German onslaught. On September 8, German forces were able to cut off the important port city of Leningrad from the south and from the east.

On the southern front, the advance was slow at first, because the Wehrmacht lacked enough motorized and Panzer units. However, by September the Wehrmacht occupied and controlled Bessarabia, large portions of the Ukraine and the Dnepr bend.

Despite the successes, Hitler and the German High Command were nervous. What to do now? The pre-invasion plan had been to now attack Moscow. Hitler decided differently on August 21, citing economic and political reasons. He ordered Army Group Center to transfer one Panzer group north to help cut off Leningrad and one Panzer group south to help encircle more Red Army formations.

In Ukraine, the newly transferred 2nd Panzer group helped the Army Group South encircle and win the pocket battle of Kiev by Sept 26. This defeat led to the capture of another 660,000 Soviet soldiers and ripped open the southern front for a length of 250 miles. The German High Command regained its confidence and finally ordered the attack on Moscow.

Firefight 2 - NKVD Defense at Mir

June 30, 1941 Operations Journal: "Field Marshal von Bock's Army Group Center has encircled large portions of the Soviet 3rd, 4th and 10th armies during the Bialystok-Minsk battle. The Soviets have initiated several break out attempts in order to link up with other West Front formations."

General Situation: Elements of Hoth's 3rd Panzer Group have cornered a Soviet company trying to break through German lines near the wooded area of Mir, SW of Minsk. Instead of surrendering, NKVD elements drive the Red Army units to a fanatical defense. From the south, another Soviet rifle platoon arrives in its effort to escape through the German lines.

Aftermath: The German Wehrmacht foiled all major Soviet break-out attempts of the Minsk pocket and killed or captured over 340,000 men, 4,700 tanks, 9,400 guns and 1,669 aircraft. Historical Note: The NKVD army, part of the Soviet secret police, were elite and often fanatical Soviet units that often were responsible for bolstering the Soviet lines and preventing wholesale retreats.

Note: Each commander has his own track sheet. Commanders combine their VPs at the end of the firefight for a combined win or loss.

Firefight 3 - The Gap

June 23, 1941 Letter: "Meine Liebste Friedle, Yesterday, the invasion against the Bolsheviks began. Our Panzers are rushing ahead and our company must sweep up the Soviets who are left behind and have not surrendered yet. I foresee no problems, because they are all ill trained and basically do not want to fight." - Corporal Hans Rastlingen near Przemysl.

General Situation: As the 14th Panzer Div. punched through and rushed past the Soviet defenses on the Bug River, a gap opened between the 24th and 262nd Infantry Divisions of the 17th Army. The Soviets surprised the Germans with their tenacity, inflicting heavy losses on the Germans. The 296th Infantry Div had to be brought forward to close the hole and stabilize the line. Elements of the 520th Infantry Regiment must root out Soviet forces, some hidden, and scout the road to the east.

Commanders: 2 Initiative: Soviets on Round 1. CAPs per Round: German 8 CAPs Soviet 6 CAPs

Cards: Shuffle all action and bonus cards under #20. Each commander receives 2 cards on round 1 and 1 card each round thereafter.

Map Setup: Maps 1 and 2. Place a Soviet Control Marker on hex 2-J10.

German Forces: One Rifle Platoon

Setup: Stack a squad, consisting of one Rifle counter and one LMG counter, on each road hex 1-J07, 1-I07, 1-H08 and 1-G08.

Notes & Tactics: In 1941, most German platoons were made up of 4 squads each. Each squad (or Gruppe) was made up of 5 riflemen, a NCO squad leader, his second, and a 3 man LMG unit. The squad centered around the LMG. The LMGs were trained to lay down suppression fire, while the riflemen advanced to an objective. German squads were tightly knit groups that were trained to work together. They are represented by 2 counters at this time- a rifle counter and a LMG team counter, to better simulate the 1941-42 German tactics.

Orders: Your platoon is operating as a scouting force. Scout the road up to the east edge of the map and destroy any Soviets encountered. You must limit your casualties.

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each Soviet unit eliminated.

1VP - 2-C10 "A" is in LOS of any German unit at the end of each round.

5VP - Control hex 2-J10 (the stone house) at the end of round 3.

2VP - Control hex 2-J10 (the stone house) at the end of the firefight.

Soviet Forces: One Rifle Platoon

Setup: MMG in hex 2-J10. Rifles may be placed anywhere on or east of row F on map 1. (This includes setting up anywhere on Map 2).

Two rifles may start the firefight hidden.

5x Rifle 1x MMG

Notes & Tactics: In 1941, most Soviet squads were comprised of 10 men - all rifles and an officer. These squads were not as tactically trained as the Germans and had less decision making autonomy. At the start of the war, Soviet officers were very inexperienced, but were learning quickly. A single MMG unit was attached to a platoon, not each squad. Maxim MMGs were slow to move and not as integrated with the infantry squads as their German LMG unit counterparts.

Reinforcements Round 3: Orders: Your platoon has been cut off. There are invading Germans all around you. The commissar says that you will defend the motherland until the last man and destroy every German who dares to contaminate her soil! Hold, for we are sending reinforcements.

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each German unit eliminated.

2VP - Control hex 2-J10 (the stone house) at the end of round 3.

4VP - Control hex 2-J10 (the stone house) at the end of rounds 4 & 5.

Firefight 4 - General Petrov

Oct 8, 1941 Dispatch: "Urgent! We immediately need a surgeon and a mobile force sent to evacuate General Petrov who has been seriously wounded. The Germans are approaching from the area of Istomo, hill 342. Commence artillery bombardment!" - Major Shabalin

General Situation: After the break through by the German LIII Inf Corps from the SW to Bryansk, Soviet General Petrov withdrew his badly shaken 50th Army to the wooded terrain NE of Bryansk. Trying to break out of the ensuing Bryansk pocket, the general was critically wounded. Informants relay the general's location in a local farmstead to the Germans, who jump at the opportunity to capture him. The Germans must capture or kill the wounded General, who cannot be moved until stabilized. The Soviets must hold out 5 rounds until reinforcements arrive. In addition, Hovlau's Hill (4-I14) offers an excellent mortar spotter vantage point, if captured by the Germans.

Historical Note: State Security Major Shabalin died at the side of General Petrov during a night break out attempt.

Firefight 6 - The Monsters

June 23, 1941 Personal Journal: "First encounter with T34's. Our 15th Panzer regiment was skirting the western side of Radekhiv, storming a hill to the south and routing the enemy. As we crested the hill, my crew was shouting in elation as we hit tank after tank. Then we encountered a terrible monster that I will never forget - the T-34." - 2nd Lieutenant Fried.

General Situation: After two days of heavy fighting for the city of Przemysl, the Germans blasted through the Russian southern defenses, aiming their Panzer groups deep into enemy territory. Soviet General Andrei Vlassov led a counter attack with the IV Corps 32nd Tank Division to cut off the German's lead attacking elements. A German recon unit of the 15th Panzer Regiment was the first to stumble against the Soviets and was shocked by the heavy T-34 tanks, which simply rolled over their forward most infantry, 3.7cm anti-tank guns, and PzII scout tanks.

Aftermath: The Soviets skillfully committed their forces against the German flanks, inflicting substantial damage. By evening, the Germans had regrouped and tore through the Soviet defenses capturing the city of Luzk two days later. A year later, the Soviet General Vlassov would command the German Wehrmacht's Vlassov Army as part of the Russian Liberation Army.

Firefight 8 - Breakthrough to the Mzensk Pocket

Late October, 1941 Handwritten letter: "The situation is desperate. Our company is surrounded on all sides, we are running low on ammunition and food. All day and all night rain and death have been pouring on us from the sky..." - Found on the body of an unidentified German soldier.

General Situation: A German force has been trapped in a village near Mzensk and is in desperate need of supplies. Reinforcements coming from the north must break through the encirclement to relieve the forces as soon as possible. Three wagons of ammunition and food are part of the relief force. Elements of General Datukov's 4th Tank Brigade are rushing in numbers of T34 and KV tanks to stop the German breakthrough attempt.

Commanders: 2 - 4 Setup: Both Germans set up first, then the Soviets. Initiative: Soviets on Round 1.

CAPs per Round: German 1 10 CAPs. An additional 2 CAPs per wagon are received immediately when they enter either hex 2-G08 or 2-I08. Firefight 9 - KV2

June 24, 1941 6th Armor Division's Operational Log: "Yesterday, we ran into a roadblock on our advance into Raseiniai. A lone KV2 tank with light support has held up our entire advance along the only road into the city. We have scored over 20 hits, but cannot penetrate its armor. We have sustained mounting casualties. Today we have requested heavy artillery support." - General Erhard Raus

General Situation: Elements of the 6th Schützen Brigade (XLI Motorized Corps, 4th Pz Group) and its supply train are being held up by a Soviet KV2 tank and its tenacious crew. The Germans must force their way through to hex 5-K10 by eliminating the KV2 and its support.

Aftermath: The KV2 was finally destroyed by an 88mm Flak18 AT gun which was deployed while the Germans conducted a diversionary tank attack. The KV2 had been hit dozens of times, was immobilized by 105mm artillery fire, and had destroyed over a dozen German vehicles.

Firefight 10 - Bug River

June 22, 1941 Journal: "The Russians are running! We have crossed the Bug river into Russia. Everything looks run down and deserted. Curious that we don't hear our artillery anymore." - Kurt Treist.

General Situation: The German 56th Infantry Division attacked the Bunker fortifications across the Bug river near Wilczy-Przewoz, which were defended tenaciously by the Russians to the last man. Almost the entire German division got caught on the east side of the river without the support of their artillery, which had already used all of its ammunition. The Soviets launch a vicious counter attack in order to reclaim the Bunkers. The situation is especially critical for the 192nd Infantry Regiment. The Germans must survive the Soviet counter attack without getting wiped out.

Commanders: 2 - 4 Initiative: Soviets on Round 1. CAPs per Round: German 8 CAPs per Platoon Soviet 6 CAPs per Platoon

Cards: Shuffle all action and bonus cards under #30. Count out a deck of 28 cards. Add and shuffle Event Objective cards #1, #2, and #3 into the bottom 20 cards of the deck. Each commander receives 2 cards on round one and 1 card each round thereafter. Each Soviet commander fires off-board artillery each time an Objective card is drawn. The commander who drew the Objective card then draws another card.

Special Rules: The Soviets pull the weapons card '122mm Artillery' for reference. Before the German commanders set up, each Soviet commander must designate up to two target hexes to go with each Event objective card. The target hexes do not have to be in the LOS of any Soviet unit and must be kept secret, even from their fellow Soviets. The chance exists that some artillery may not be fired, since there are more cards in the deck than will be drawn during the firefight.

Historical Note: The Soviet artillery was very unreliable and fired on its own positions on several occasions.

Map Setup: Use maps 2, 1, and 4. Place four German Control Markers and four Bunkers facing west (away from the action) on hexes 2-H04, 1-J03, 4-H17, and 4-C16. Place five Trench counters on hexes 2-G05, 1-J04, 4-G16, 4-B16, and 4-B15. The Germans set up first, no more than 6 hexes east of the bottom west edge, as shown below. The Soviets start round one by entering from the east as designated on the maps below.

German 1 Forces: 1st Platoon, 3rd Co, 192 Inf Reg

Setup: 1st Platoon sets up no more than 6 hexes east of the western edge and north of row 1-H. Two units may set up hidden.

German 2 Forces: 2nd Platoon, 3rd Co, 192 Inf Reg

Setup: 2nd Platoon sets up no more than 6 hexes east of the western edge and south of row 1-H. Two units may set up hidden.

Orders: Hold the Bunkers and keep your men from being slaughtered!

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each Soviet foot unit eliminated (rifles, mortars, & MMGs).

2VP - Immediately score each Soviet tank, gun, or truck eliminated.

Firefight 11 - Assault on Peprez

Oct 2, 1941 4th Panzer Division Operational Log: "On the first day of Operation "Taifun", the division advanced rapidly towards Tula, capturing many cities along the way. We have met our first strong resistance at the outskirts of Oryol. The Soviets are well entrenched with heavy anti-tank gun support."

General Situation: Forward elements of the 35th Pz Reg have encountered strong resistance on the outskirts of Oryol near the village of Peprez. The Germans must penetrate the prepared positions outside of town and occupy key locations in the city. A quick capture will guarantee rapid advancement for the rest of the 4th Panzer Division, before cold weather hits.

Commanders: 2-4 Initiative: Germans on Round 1.

CAPs per Round: German 10 CAPs per company Soviet 10 CAPs per company.

(Each company commander has his/her own track sheet, 2 for the Germans and 2 for the Soviets.)

Cards: Use all action and bonus cards. Each commander receives 2 cards at the beginning of round 1 and 1 card each round thereafter.

Map Setup: Maps 1, 2, 4, and 5. Place Soviet Control Markers on hexes 5-G02, 5-C08, 5-J11, 5-C16, 4-I15, and a German Control Marker on hex 1-B13. Place Bunkers on 4-D05, 4-I14, 4-J15, 4-H17, a Land Mine on 4-H14, Roadblocks on 4-G14, 5-H17, a Wire on 5-G07, and Trenches on 5-E18, 5-H18. Units Setup: Soviets set up first.

Secret Objective: The Germans shuffle the four Event 'Objective' cards and blindly pull one. This one card is the secret German objective and the card number correlates to the yellow circled numbers on map 5 below. Controlling this objective hex at the end of the firefight will earn the possessing German commander bonus VPs. The objective is revealed to the Soviets at the end of the firefight.

Artillery Planning: The Soviet commanders set up first, then together target four artillery strikes for round 1 and five artillery strikes for round 2. Soviet artillery target hexes are not required to be in the LOS of any unit. The German commanders set up after the Soviets, then together target six artillery strikes for round 1. The German target hexes must be in the LOS of a friendly unit. The target hexes for both factions are written on a separate sheet of paper and must be written in order of execution.

Round 1: At the beginning of round 1, the Soviets and Germans determine the number of successful strikes that actually occur for that round. The Soviets resolve a number of strikes equal to 1D6 minus 2. The Germans resolve a number of strikes equal to 1D6. (Ex: The Russians roll a 4, so only 2 strikes are successful and resolved.) The strikes are then resolved in the order that they were written.

Round 2 German artillery planning: The German commanders target 4 artillery strikes for round 3 at the beginning of round 2. All targets hexes must be written in order of execution. The target hexes must be in the LOS of a friendly unit.

Round 2 Soviet artillery strikes: After the Germans have planned their 4 artillery targets, the Soviets resolve a number of strikes equal to 1D6 minus 1. Strikes must be resolved in the order that they were written at the beginning of the firefight.

Round 3 German artillery strikes: At the beginning of round 3, the Germans resolve a number of strikes equal to 1D6 minus 2. Strikes must be resolved in the order that they were written at the beginning of round 2.

Special Rules: German artillery and 8cm mortars may fire smoke up to the limit of available smoke counters supplied with the game.

German 1 Forces: 1st Company

Setup: Place anywhere on map 1, south of row 1-Gxx.

Soviet 1 Forces: 1st Company, 1st augmented Platoon

Setup: The 1st company sets up anywhere on maps 2 and 5. Six units may set up hidden. All Land Mines set up hidden.

German 2 Forces: 2nd Company

Setup: Place anywhere on map 1, east of column 1-x09.

The Grenade card may be used three times during the firefight by any foot unit(s).

Orders: Control as many control hexes by the end of the firefight as possible. Controlling the objective hex adds a +4VP bonus.

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each Soviet unit eliminated.

2VP - For each hex 1-B13 and 4-I15 controlled at the end of the firefight.

3VP - For each hex 5-G02, 5-C08, 5-J11, and 5-C16 controlled at the end of the firefight.

4VP - Additional VPs awarded if the objective hex is controlled at the end of the firefight.

Soviet 2 Forces: 2nd Company, Platoons 2 and 3

Setup: The 2nd company sets up anywhere on maps 4 and 5, unless a hex location is marked under the counter below. Six units may set up hidden. All Land Mines are hidden. Both 45mm anti-tank guns must be placed in Bunkers 4-I14 and 4-H14. One SMG squad must be placed in Bunker 4-J15.

The Molotov card may be used three times during the firefight by any foot unit(s).

Orders: Control as many control hexes as possible by the end of the firefight.

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each German unit eliminated.

4VP - For each hex 1-B13 and 4-I15 controlled at the end of the firefight.

3VP - For each hex 5-G02, 5-C08, 5-J11, and 5-C16 controlled at the end of the firefight.

Firefight 12 - Demolition

July 6, 1942 General Orders: "The Grossdeutschland Division will enter Voronezh with a special demolitions team to blow up a communications hub near the city center." - Major Gen. Hörlein

General Situation: Lead elements of the 24th Pz Div along with the Grossdeutschland Motorized Infantry Div. have entered Voronezh, a major city on the Don river. All is in chaos and the Germans are attempting to blow a tall communication headquarters building. The Russians have been ordered by Stalin to hold the city at all costs.

Commanders: 2 Initiative: Germans on Round 1.

Special Rules: A demolition charge is 'set' in a hex when occupied by Pioneers and free of Soviet units. Set charges are tracked by flipping the Control Marker to the German side. If a pioneer still occupies the hex at round's end, the charge detonates, the marker is removed, and the German receives 2VPs. If a pioneer no longer occupies a set demolition hex at round's end, the German rolls 1D6 and the charge detonates on a 5 or 6.

If a Soviet occupies a set demolition hex at round's end, free of Germans, he may try to disarm the hex once by rolling a 3 thru 6 on a 1D6. If the roll is successful, the Control Marker is flipped back to the Soviet side. Disarming attempts occur before the German detonation roll. Setting and disarming cost no APs and are not considered actions. If a hex is not disarmed and does not detonate, it stays as is and another detonation roll is made at the end of the next round. Disarmed hexes may be set again.

Victory Points:

1VP - Immediately score each Soviet unit eliminated.

2VP - Immediately score each hex that detonates. Place the detonated Control Marker on your track sheet.

Firefight 13 - Smolensk Breakout

July 9, 1941 Personal Journal: "The spaces seem endless, the horizons nebulous. The villages look wretched and melancholy, with their straw-thatched wooden houses. The Russian civilian is tough, and the Russian soldier still tougher. He seems to have an illimitable capacity for obedience and endurance." - Leut. General Stumpff- 20th Panzer Div.

General Situation: The German Panzer Corps made deep thrusting and rapid movements through the Soviet lines. The outflanking Panthers would then wheel inwards from the flanks, closing around the rear of the enemy forces to complete an encircling ring. The intent was to isolate, capture, and destroy as many Soviet formations as possible. The Panzer corps were somewhat successful in these tactics, but depended heavily on the non-mechanized infantry divisions to hold the line and hinder strong Soviet breakout and relief attempts. The Germans were thinly strung out and often isolated pockets of Germans would be attacked by Soviet forces trying to break the ring from both the outside and inside. On July 22, the 2nd Rifle company of the 111th Inf. Reg is desperately trying to repulse a Soviet breakout near a critical road junction on the northern sector of the Smolensk Pocket. Soviets have surrounded the small German force, which has radioed for reinforcements from a nearby station.

Firefight 14 - Sovkhoz Depot

Nov 26, 1941 Journal: "The icy cold, the wretched shelters, the shortage of clothing, the high losses of men and equipment, the lack of heating fuel made the conduct of battle a chore..." - Generaloberst Guderian.

General Situation: In their drive for Moscow, the German army ground to a halt within a few kilometers of the city. On Dec 2, the temperature sank to -37C and the German tank engines would not start and the gun breeches would not open. The winter mobile Soviets attacked across the front and blew holes into the German defenses. In desperation, the Germans marshaled what supplies they could find and dug in at villages when they could. On Dec 3, a company of the German 82nd Infantry Regiment, stationed 10km east of Tula, is attacked by elements of the 1st Guard Cavalry Corps. The exhausted Germans must hold the supply depot, because surrender is not an option.

Commanders: 2 Initiative: Soviet on Round 1. CAPs per Round: German 7 CAPs Soviet 7 CAPs

CAP tracks cannot be adjusted below 3 due to destroyed units (7.4). So a commander will always start a round with at least 2 CAPs.

Firefight 15 - Battle for Mogilev

July 15, 1941 6th Company Log: "The Soviets countered our thrust over the Dnepr River with a strong attack led by the 13th Soviet Army under the command of Lieutenant General Gerassimenko. We parried with the 3rd Panzer Div and the "Grossdeutschland" Motorized Inf Reg. The Soviets were finally encircled by the VII Army Corps under General Fahrbacher. A desperate battle ensued around and in the city of Mogilev that has lasted over a week. They (Soviets) can not retreat and seem to have run out of artillery munitions, but they refuse to surrender."

General Situation: On July 26, four infantry divisions of the VII Army Corps - the 7th, 15th, 23rd and 78th launched a concentrated attack into the heart of Mogilev. The 15th Infantry Division (ID) under Lieutenant General Hell must take the city center without tank or artillery support. The Soviets have mined the center heavily and are well entrenched. The 15th must take the major city objectives.

Aftermath: The 15th finally took the city center on July 27 with heavy losses. During the battle, Generaloberst Guderian continued his attacks along the entire Dnepr front. The Infantry Divisions later closed ranks on the Dnepr and the battle of Smolensk began.

Commanders: 2 Initiative: German on Round 1. CAPs per Round: German 12 CAPs Soviet 6 CAPs

CAP tracks cannot be adjusted below 3 due to destroyed units (7.4). So a commander will always start a round with at least 2 CAPs.

In the battles of Vjama and Bryansk in October, another 600,000 Soviet soldiers were captured. But the question was, 'Could the Wehrmacht win the campaign before winter began?'

On October 20, already late in the year, Army Group Center resumed its advance on the Soviet capital. Unfortunately for the Germans, rain turned the ground to mud and then temperatures plummeted which slowed and finally stopped the Wehrmacht. German strength had eroded significantly since the start of the campaign in June, while replacements for men and materials barely trickled in. Moreover, Soviet resistance stiffened in front of their capital.

The famous Red Army commander Zhukov, leading the Soviet West Front, began his counteroffensive on December 5 and by mid-December the threat of a German encirclement of Moscow was no more. German losses mounted and the Red Army began a series of offensives along the entire Russian front. The Wehrmacht, mostly immobilized by snow, faced total destruction. But the Soviet offensive was too spread out and failed to concentrate its forces on key points in the German lines to attain a breakthrough. The Germans fought back desperately and through a series of well placed counter thrusts, blunted the Soviet attacks and finally managed to stabilize the front.

However, the Russian Bear had awoken and was hungry for revenge.

1VP - Per Control Marker at the end of each round.

Aftermath

"Operation Barbarossa" had failed. The German objective had been the quick capitulation of the Soviet Union. The Germans had delayed the beginning of the invasion too long and had run out of time due to the arrival of a brutal Russian winter. Operation Barbarossa had taken the lives of 3 million Soviet soldiers and another 3 million prisoners of war. Germany and its allies lost a combined total of 1 million dead and wounded.

The Wehrmacht would resume its attack in spring 1942. Germany and the Soviet Union had suffered great loses in 1941, and German strength and supply was diminished to the point that the new offensive, code-named "Fall Blau", concentrated only on the southern part of the front, directed towards the Baku oil fields. It would end at Stalingrad and in the Caucasus.

Firefight 16 - Belbek Valley

June 6, 1942 Journal: "The Bolsheviks are fanatical. We fire tank and AT gun shots point blank into their bunkers and they just do not give up!" - Sergeant Rudi Drescher

General Situation: By early June 1942, Germans have battled their way close to the great fortress city of Sevastopol on the Black Sea. Elements of the 436th Infantry Regiment have been fighting for control of the heavily fortified hills north of Sevastopol in the Belbek Valley. They must capture the important high ground south of the Soviet fortification called "The Bastion".

Aftermath: The carnage on both sides was severe, with units fighting to the last man. The Germans finally took the stronghold with the help of intensive artillery and Stuka support. But their hold was tenuous and would not last long.
